CONTESTANTS URGED TO TURN IN BALLOTS

Reasons Are Advanced Why This Is Necessary in Herald $25,000 Contest-Should Visit the Home.

Contestants in The Washington Herald's 25,000 competition are urged by The Advecate to deposit their votes and mediums of exchange as frequently as possible. This programme is not compulsory, but if followed will be beneficial both to the contest management and the contestant.

Contestants in The Washington Herald's 25,000 competition are urged by The Advecate to deposit their votes and
mediums of exchange as frequently as possible. This programme is not compulsory, but if followed will be bensficial both to the contest management and the contestant.

There are numerous reasons why contestants should deposit their votes at frequent intervals. If votes are kept at home there is the possibility of their becoming lost or destroyed. Contestants may reason that this chance is very slim, and may consequently be quite willing to run the risk. The chance is very slim, but there is nevertheless a possibility. Why run even this slight risk? The depositing of the votes, which requires practically no time and effort, removes the faintest possibility of any accident befalling the precious little paper slips.

The contestant gains much by each trip he makes to the contest home at 714 he is at the tail of the list. The votes has true in the last minute, and then rushing them in mercat quant titles. The Advocate is unable to see how the contestant is to profit by such tactics. The contestants probably reason that the parent leader.
This is not wholly without logic. But while there is a possibility of the one testants gaining through the use of the system, there is likewise a grave chance to a porson who seems to have a good chance of winning than to a person who
the contestant gains much by each trip her and they contested by withhelding the votes until the last minute.
The Advocate is unable to see how the contestants is to profit by such tactics. The contestants is to profit by such tactics. The contestants of the sees that his nearest competitor in far behind. And no they withhold their hands, expecting on the last day of the contest or rush in thousands of votes to the surprise and changes of the votes, while there is a possibility of the contestant gains through the tactics. The contestants or profit by such tactics. The contestants or profit by such tactics. The contestants or pro of any accident befalling the precious little paper alips.

The contestant gains much by each trip he makes to the contest home at III Thirteenth Street Northwest. He imbles the contest spirit, which pervades the building at all times. This spirit is invaluable. It inspires the contestant to the expenditure of greater effort. It makes him determined to work harder, to give more time to the matter of getting votes, and to spurt forward ahead of competitors and cross the finish lies of the race first. There is nothing so indispensable in the accomplishment of things as inspiration. This is true in all of the manifold phases of life. It is true of The Herald's mighty contest. The winners of the race will be those who put their very soul into the work. The winners will be those who filtered to the swork of the race of the race will be those who have goodly water of the swards to be appears far down on the list of contestants. "What use is it?" these friends reason. "to give votes its So-and-So? He is at the tail of the list. The votes wouldn't do him any good if he got them. Let us give them to Top-Notch. He stands near the top of the list. He has a fair prospect of winning. He needs our support." Contestants give careful consideration to this important problem! Contestants abould visit the Thirteenth Street home at least once a week, and if possible, every day. All of the work in connection with the competition is now being conducted at the contest home. It is the headquarters of The Advocate. Votes and mediums of exchange should be deposited there. The building is open daily except Sunday from 8 o'clock in the morning until 9 o'clock at night. The public is cordially invited to inspect the building and its contents.

The winners will be those who effervesce with enthusiasm, those who have goodly visions of the end of the race and who sirve diligently and persistently to realize those fair dreams. Enthusiasm by a simple law of psychology is contagious. Get in the midst of enthusiasis, and if you are a normal person, your soul will soon begin to leap with the same fervor. Apply this psychological fact. Visit the contest home, and before long you will be after with zeal and industry over the competition.

Invited to inspect the building and its contents.

Many of the awards to be given to winners in the contest are on display in the building. Among the articles are dising-room sets, parior suites, dining-room sets, parior tables, library tables, bookcases, sectional bookcases, chiffonsometry, planica, bleyfiles, and scores of the competition. ompetition. 250 awards. Sioux City, Ibwa, Oct. 29.-Fire panics sioux City, lowa, oct. 25.—Fire panies are not allowed to do violence to the proprieties in Sioux City. There was a fire scare in the Hotel West, early to-day. There were feminine shrieks and the pattering of bare feet, the gleam of white shoulders and the flutter of draperies. But only as far gossamer draperies. But only as far as the lobby.

There the hotel attaches assumed command. Women whose only object seemed to be at the speed records to the outerworld, forgetting the lack of street clothing were forcibly detained and garments were thrust upon them. They were not allowed to make their way from the smoke-filled corridors until the head clerk decided that their covering was adequate. The fire caused only slight damage.

Ways of Explosives. Indianapolis, Oct. 29.—That James B McNamara had him experiment with McNamara had him experiment with dynamite explosions by electric sparks, the day before the night that McNamara blew up the Lyons Office Building, Seat-tle, Wash., August 31, 1910, was the tes-timony of Prof. J. D. Wagner, a college professor at Seattle.

Prof. Wagner told of exploding a small Prof. Wagner told of exploding a small piece of dynamite with the clock works and battery arrangement used by Mc-Namara. McNamara complained the plan did not always work, and Prof. Wagner showed him how to make it a sure shot every time. J. H. McCormack, with whom McNamara roomed as "J. B. Bryce." testified as to the fact that McNamara was there the night of the Lyons explosion and that he left the
